Krupp-Gruson, Magdeburg.

The Krupp-Gruson Plant in Magdeburg belongs to the AMO SAG (Soviet Corporation [for machine-building]) and is now called Ernst Thaelmann Plant. The plant needs 1,250 tons of special pig iron in 1951, for casting rollers and for foundation plates. These products are sent to the USSR for reparation deliveries exclusively.

Since there are no raw materials available in East Germany for the special iron, these have to be obtained in West Germany.
